

Take Out Profits On War

Declaration by Lucas as Tax Boosting Bill Action Impends

By Francis M. Le May

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Senate Democratic Leader Lucas said today that, although there may be no immediate tax action against profiteering, the American people can be assured "nobody is going to get rich at the expense of the G.I."

"We are going to take the profits out of war," the Illinois Senator said.

Lucas made his statement as Democratic leaders prepared to ram through Congress a tax-boosting bill, probably near the $5,000,000,000 size President Truman proposed, and without an excess profits levy.

An immediate excess profits tax was not recommended by the President, Lucas said, in the interest of speeding the "first installment" tax hike to passage.

He predicted it will come later, with stiff rates on abnormal business profits. And he added, "If we get into a real war, we're going to have the most drastic taxes this country has ever seen. This tax bill is just to get ready for the big one."

Meanwhile, the Senate Finance committee moved swiftly to put the tax bill in shape for quick congressional action.

In its first session behind closed doors, it formally junked the House-approved bill to cut by $1,010,000,000 the excise taxes on such things as furs, jewelry, cosmetics and movie tickets, and approved instead a $55,000,000 excise increase.

It voted:

A 10 per cent manufacturers' excise on television sets, to collect $42,000,000.

A 10 per cent manufacturers' levy on home freezers, for another $18,000,000.

A boost in the slot machine tax from $100 to $150 a year for each machine in operation. The slot machine operators would kick $5,000,000 additional into the Treasury.

Major Proposals

The committee is yet to act on Mr. Truman's major tax increasing proposals:

1. $3,000,000 additional on individual incomes. The President wants this increase effective October 1, to pick up $700,000,000 from 1950 individual income, with the full force of the $3,000,000 additional burden becoming effective next year.

2. $1,500,000 additional by boosting corporation income rates. Mr. Truman proposed making this rate hike effective for all

English War Bride Is Granted Divorce

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Three English war brides—all from Plymouth, England—appeared in Superior court yesterday, one getting a divorce and the others appearing as witnesses.

Mrs. Iris B. Chapes, 25, an office worker, was granted a divorce by Judge Rudolph Desort from John E. Chapes, 26, a salesman. She charged cruelty in 1944 when Chapes was stationed at Plymouth as an army private.

Her witnesses were Mrs. Hilda Peterson, 24, and Mrs. Elaine Keltner, 24. All are members of the English War Brides Association of Chicago.

Miss English Talks to Club On the Library

Miss Lamm in Review Before The Kiwanians

The Sedalia Public Library, which will celebrate its 30th anniversary next year, was the subject of talks by Miss Mary English, librarian, and Miss Nettie R. Lamm, assistant, before the Sedalia Kiwanis Club meeting in Bothwell hotel Thursday noon.

Miss Lamm reviewed the early days of the town when in 1871 a library association was formed by a group of leading citizens, and its erratic career until 1880, when a group agreed to contribute a fixed sum "to make it solid."

In 1888 steps were taken for a permanent home, seeking help of the Carnegie fund. This procedure resulted later in location of the present site and building.

Brings on Discussion

Miss English responded to numerous questions that resulted in animated discussion of the library subject, including references to state aid, the new microfilm service, the importance of county library service, and finances.

The speakers were introduced by George H. Seruton, program chairman.

The Rev. M. E. Campbell was called upon to pay tribute to a deceased member, E. W. McClammy, following which the club joined in singing "Abide With Me" led by William Ward.

Albert Allgaier was a guest of his father, A. B. Allgaier.

Official Count Starts Friday

The counting of the absentee ballots cast in the primary election will be done Friday morning. The official count of the Pettis county election ballots will start Friday afternoon, and possibly might be held over until Saturday morning, James Green, county clerk, said today.

The county court in session this morning appointed George Hoffman and W. D. Smith as the Republicans to count the absentee ballots, while the Democratic list submitted to the court was not received until too late for the count to act. The Democrats submitted for judges from which two will be selected are James Duxley, S. J. Timborsous, Walter Clamer and Joseph Potts.

There are thirty-five regular absentee ballots cast and two war absentee ballots cast.

The number of Democratic and Republican ballots could not be determined, but from the list of names who sent in the absentee ballots it appears as if there are about 11 Republican ballots out of the 37.

Of course, he added, most Democratic ballots from Washington should be for Allison.

Then the governor—a man who has held some elective office for 18 years—said he never has had occasion to criticize the voting of Missourians.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 3.—(AP)—With the absentee votes turn the tide in the photo finish race for the Democratic nomination for Senator from Missouri?

It is possible.

But Emery W. Allison must pile up a margin of better than two-to-one in the absentee voting to overtake the lead, Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., holds in the regular voting.

Hennings had a 4,446 vote lead in regular voting, with returns from all but 25 of the state's 4,876 precincts reported.

A statewide survey of county clerks shows that mail ballots were issued to about 12,000 Missourians.

There was nothing to indicate

House Favors Controls be Automatic

For Removal of Standby Authority On Wage-Prices

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The House voted tentatively today to put wage and price controls into effect automatically whenever the labor department's cost-of-living index advances five percent above what it was on June 15.

Administration forces offered only token opposition as the House adopted by voice vote the cost-of-living amendment offered by Rep. McKinnon (D-Calif.). It could reverse its stand later when the economic control bill comes up for roll-call votes.

The McKinnon amendment is similar to one proposed to the Senate banking committee by Senator Fulbright (D-Ark.). It would put wage and price controls into effect automatically whenever the bureau of labor statistics (BLS) living cost index advances five percent above what it was last June 15.

It would remove the proposed standby authority which would let President Truman decide when to impose wage and price ceilings.

W. Stuart Swinington, chairman of the national security resources board, made a special trip to the capitol today to urge senators to give the President a free hand in putting the wage-price rationing curbs into effect.

The BLS price index covers retail prices of food, clothing, fuel, services and other necessities of life for moderate-income families in a selected group of large cities.

New index figures covering the June 15-July 15 period will not be available until the end of this month. However, Ewan Clague, director of the BLS, gave senators evidence today that the next index will show an increase.

Clague said a preliminary check of retail food prices indicates a general increase of two to three per cent during the month ended July 15. He attributed advances mainly to higher meat prices.

He told the Senate banking committee that the preliminary food price checks covered four cities as of mid-July. Food, of

Nehru Would Let Red China in UN

NEW DELHI, India, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Prime minister Nehru declared today that the war in Korea should be contained and no other question should be tied up with the Korean issue.

In a statement to parliament opening debate on the Korean issue—which is also now before the United Nations—Nehru reiterated that communist China should be admitted to the U. N.

But he said that enlargement of the Korean issue to include such items as Formosa and Indo-China appeared "not only not to be bright but also to have dangerous consequences" for the world peace.

In a summation of his views on Korea the Indian leader said that a wrongful act of aggression had taken place there and it must be condemned. He said the war should not be permitted to spread and no other question should be tied up with the Korean issue.

As to the future of Korea, he added, it must be decided by the Koreans themselves.

Nehru said he was inclined to believe that if Red China had been admitted to the U. N. "many of the subsequent dangerous developments, including the Korean development, might not have taken place."

U. S. Battalion Fights Behind Enemy Lines

In Savage Clash Saves Command Post Early Today

By Don Whitehead

AN ADVANCED U. S. COMMAND POST, Korea, Aug. 3.—(AP)—This is the amazing story of a U. S. battalion that fought its way 22 miles behind the enemy lines, battled again and saved a regimental command post from destruction in a savage struggle this morning.

"There hasn't been anything quite like this daring adventure in all the Korean war. The officers called it 'a reconnaissance in force' and it proved for the high command:

1. That the enemy line can be breached by a hard-hitting tank force.

2. That the enemy is building up strong forces around Chinju for the drive eastward toward Masan and the vital port city of Pusan.

The enemy dropped leaflets behind the American lines near Masan this morning urging natives to stay in their houses. The leaflets said the Red forces were preparing to attack in great force and drive the Americans out. "We will liberate you," the Reds said.

The battalion's thrust into the enemy lines left no doubt the Reds have a strong force in the southernmost drive headed toward Masan.

This battalion made a 36-hour forced march south to reach the jumping off place for the dash toward Chinju. The boys had a few hours' rest and then at 6 a. m. yesterday they began their push.

Troops of the U. S. 24th division held their line firmly east of Chinju today after sending the tank-led battalion deep into enemy territory.

Deepest Thrust

The tanks probed for miles behind enemy lines Wednesday in the deepest penetration American forces have made in this war.

(Maj. Gen. John E. Church, commanding the 24th, told Associated Press correspondent O. H. P. King: "Our timing was fortunate. Our attack stopped them from getting underway.")

The tank force smashed through the enemy and caught rear communist elements by surprise. The Americans engaged the Reds in a vicious hand-to-hand battle and rolled almost into Chinju.

The tank force can a gauntlet of machine gun fire all the way. But it captured enemy documents, maps and Russian made equipment. Intelligence officers said these were important finds.

Four Sherman tanks and four armored cars were abandoned. The Americans withdrew to road positions four miles southwest of Chumunni and about 40 air miles from Pusan after the Reds closed in behind them and cut off the tanks. The North Koreans stopped the first tank and the last one. The tank crews and most of the armored car crews escaped.

Terms Soviet As Being 'An Aggressor'

E. W. Pauley as a 'Mystery Witness' At Hearing

By Edwin B. Haskinson

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Edwin W. Pauley said today he felt in 1946, and still does, that the United States should go to war with Russia if necessary to make her comply with her agreements in Korea.

By Edwin B. Haskinson

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Edwin W. Pauley, former special ambassador for the president, told Senators today that the "Soviet Union has been a deliberate aggressor in Korea as far back as May 28, 1946."

Pauley testified before the Senate Armed Services committee at a special hearing on Korea.

Waiting to take the witness chair was Brig. Gen. W. L. Roberts, former head of the U. S. military mission in Korea.

Chairman Tydings (D-Md.), in announcing the hearing yesterday, had refused to say who the witnesses would be but declared "important" testimony on Korea would be received.

Senators Bridges (R-N.H.) and Knowland (R-Calif.), who had been kept in the dark as to the witnesses' names until just before the hearing, told reporters that Pauley was Tydings' "mystery witness."

Pauley, a California oil man, headed a U. S. reparations mission after the close of World War II. In that capacity, he visited Korea to learn what assets the Japanese had there. His visit was in May, 1946.

When Pauley took the stand, Tydings said that he had been asked by the White House and the Pentagon for Pauley's testimony.

However, in answer to a question by Senator Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.), Pauley said that his statement reflected only his own views and had not been submitted to any department in advance.

Tydings' advance air of mystery about the hearing led to all manner of speculation as to what was in prospect. There were even rumors that Gen. Douglas MacArthur was flying here.

There was a big turnout of reporters, news photographers and newsreel and television men but not many spectators.

Pauley had a lengthy prepared statement.

"Two days ago Jacob Malik, the Soviet representative who is current president of the security council of the United Nations, charged this country with aggression in Korea," Pauley began.

"The harsh truth is that the South Korean battalion commander refused to move at all yesterday unless he and his men were permitted to attack the Reds for three hours. The U. S. colonel who was trying to move him finally had to agree.

South Koreans Wanted to Keep Battle Going

ON THE NAKTONG RIVER LINE, Korea, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The Americans had trouble getting one South Korean battalion to withdraw behind the natural barrier of the Naktong river early today. The South Koreans wanted to stay on the west side and fight the Reds.

The South Korean battalion commander refused to move at all yesterday unless he and his men were permitted to attack the Reds for three hours. The U. S. colonel who was trying to move him finally had to agree.

Strength Is Increased

Arrival of marine and Second Infantry division elements in the combat area permitted the Allies to just about match division for division with the North Koreans for the first time—five American and five Korean Republican divisions against nine to 10 Red divisions.

Dispatches from Eighth Army headquarters said the three-day Allied withdrawal was skillfully timed to disengage defending troops just when reinforcements were moving up so that new, carefully chosen defense positions could be occupied with a minimum of fighting.

After a long argument to the effect that it would be better to ride back and fight another day, the South Koreans finally boarded the trucks.

"Our men don't want to lose face by retreating," an interpreter explained.

It was past midnight before we got them loaded," said Beck. "They still wanted to get out and start the battle all over."

The British government had planned an announcement for later today. At Mr. Truman's news conference a British correspondent arose and asked the President:

"Will you comment on the new nine and one-half billion dollar British rearmament program being announced in London today?"

The President said he was very happy about this.

Two Hitter In Shutout by Hal White

Doby of Cleveland
Indians Hits Three
Long Homers

By Jack Hand
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Maybe Red Rolfe had a hunch about Hal White. Maybe he was just plain desperate with Art Houtteman on the shelf. But hunch, desperation luck or shot-in-the-dark, the Detroit manager's move was a touch of genius.

White, an obscure refugee from the bullpen, gave the Tigers' pennant hopes a shot in the arm yesterday with a brilliant two-hit shutout of New York, 4-0. That's why the Tigers are two games out front in the American League.

Yesterday the 31-year-old right-hander faced only 31 men. Singles by Gene Woodling in the third and Johnny Mize in the fourth marred his no-hit bid. White did a job at the plate, too, driving in what proved to be the winning run with a second-inning single off Albie Reynolds.

Larry Doby hit three successive homers for the Indians last night as Bob Lemon won his 17th the easy way—by an 11-0 score over Washington. Lemon, top winner in the majors, hasn't lost since June 20 and now has nine straight victories.

The Boston Red Sox made it 13 out of 16 over the St. Louis Browns, rallying with three in the ninth for a 9-8 edge. Walt Dropo's single, following a two-run double by Vern Stephens, did the job for the Sox.

Elmer Valo hit for the cycle with a single, double, triple and homer for Philadelphia in a 10-3 win over Chicago.

Bootsie the Phillies
Emory (Hubba) Church boosted the Phillies, National League lead to 3½ games with a 2-0 decision over Cincinnati's Willard Damschell. Church allowed only three hits and drove in the first run with a single in the fourth.

Brooklyn moved into second place on some timely hitting by Jimmy Russell against his old Pittsburgh mates. Russell, batting righthanded against Lefty Bill Werle, hit a two-run homer to tie the score in the ninth. Batting lefthanded against righthander Murry Dickson in the 10th, Russell won the game with a single, 5-4.

Boston's Johnny Sain clicked off his 15th win to hoist the Braves into third place over St. Louis with a 4-3 decision over the Cards. Walker Cooper's pinch single in the eighth scored Sid Gordon with the tie-breaking run off Harry Brecheen.

The New York Giants climbed all over Chicago for a double win, 11-1 and 8-6 despite three homers by the Cubs. Andy Pafko in the second game.

Over Thousand For Golf Tourney

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(P)—One thousand and 24 golfers will compete next week for 201 permits to play in the National Amateur Golf championships at Minneapolis later this month.

Thirty-five sectional qualifying tests will be held next Tuesday. A thirty-sixth will be held at Salt Lake City on Monday. Another test, that at Honolulu, was cancelled when the only two entrants withdrew.

Charles Cox of Oklahoma City, the defending champion, and the eight other assorted champions and ex-champions complete the field for the all-match-play 50th annual National Amateur at the Minneapolis Golf Club Aug. 21-25.

The ex-champions who are exempt are Willie Turnesa (1938 and 1948) of White Plains, N. Y.; Stanley (Tad) Bishop (1946) of Boston; Richard Chapman (1940) of Pinehurst, N. C.; Harrison R. Johnston (1929) of Minneapolis and Charles Evans, Jr., (1916 and 1920) of Chicago.

Others exempt are Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, current British amateur champ; Stanley Bielak of Yonkers, N. Y., U. S. public links champion and Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., USGA junior titleholder.

Minneapolis, with 125 aspirants, has the largest field in the tests and will gain 18 of the berths in the championships proper.

The number of berths is determined on both the quality and quantity of the contenders in the qualifying tests; all of which are for 36 holes.

In Kansas City 42 entries will play for 8 positions in St. Louis 32 for 6, and in Oklahoma City 20 for 4.

Shirley May France Says She's Ready

By Shirley May France
(Copyright, 1950, by NEA Service, Inc.)

DOVER, England.—(NEA)—I have begun the final stages of my training for the most important day of my life. It isn't many days away now. Soon I'll be wading into the surf off Cape Gris Nez, France, to make my attempt at swimming the English channel, under the sponsorship of NEA Service.

I say the final stages of training because the long weeks of grinding myself into physical shape are over. I'm ready now, from a physical point of view, for my second try. My stamina is good, my stroke has reached its proper peak and I'm also mentally prepared to do battle with the cold and the tides.

Up until now, my training has been pointed at two main purposes, to get in the best possible physical condition, and to accustom myself to staying in the cold water for long periods. I've reached my peak condition, I think, and my coach Harry Boudnik, agrees.

On my last training swim, for example, I was in the water for five hours and I didn't mind the cold one bit. And it was the cold, more than any one factor, that beat me last year.

From now on my training will taper off. I'll make just one more long swim. That one will be from Varn Lightship to mid-channel. I'll do that the first good day I get.

Outside of that one long pull, I'll have brief daily swims until the big day. According to tide tables, the 7th, 8th and 9th of August are good days for swimming, because that's the time of the neap tides, the lowest of the month.

However, the tides are only one factor in choosing the best day to swim. Weather is equally important. My pilot, John Burwill, told me that if the weather is good on one of those three days, that's when I'll go.

When I do start the swim, it will probably be about three in the morning. I prefer an early morning start because it means that most of the swim will take place in the daylight.

And I sure would like to be able to see my goal—those White Cliffs of Dover.

Frog Symphony Fools Public

PASADENA, Calif.—(P)—For weeks residents of Glen Summer Road complained of "loud and strange noises" which they attributed to power lines.

The light department sent out a trouble crew on a night when one sleepless citizen said, "the noise vibrated the entire house." The crew's findings: A bunch of bullfrogs in a nearby swamp were whooping it up. "This department has no remedy," a spokesman sadly announced.

The load is given credit for capturing many insects in a garden. It is not harmful in any way and its residence in a garden should be encouraged.

By lending more than 14,000 CBO books annually, the Chicago public library has the world's largest circulation.

Russia May Have Added Two Serious Blunders To Its List

By J. M. Roberts, Jr.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Soviet Russia's return to the United Nations council table seems to have assured that Communist China will not be admitted to membership while other Communists make aggressive war.

The Russians also have added one and perhaps two serious blunders to their long list.

They reversed themselves on the boycott of the U. N. which had lasted for seven months, gambling a serious loss of face against the opportunity to make an appeal to anti-western sentiment in Asia.

First Blunder

Their first blunder was to announce their return several days in advance, giving the western nations a well-utilized opportunity to be prepared with antidotes for Malik's propaganda.

And the propaganda itself was so full of ill-considered information that it may defeat its own purpose. Malik appealed to Asia. But he tries tricks rather than persuasion on the merits of the Communist case. He tried vilification and the "big lie" technique against the United States. By making his appeal to Asia through these tactics, he let them know that he considered them fools, and it may cost Russia dearly.

Nehru of India, for instance, is no man to be fooled by such mouthings. Nehru is a type of Socialist who may not yet perceive clearly the complete break-away of Communist imperialism from Socialism. But he is no sucker. He knows who started the Korean war, who provided the North Koreans with the weapons, and who directs both the military and political tactics of the campaign.

Negotiated Peace

India saw the admission of Communist China to the U. N. as a means of getting down to a negotiated peace. If Malik had come forward with the least reasonable offer of peace he would have remained on solid ground with Nehru. If he could still do that he would retain India's support. But he cannot, for Russian general policy is to promote discord, not peace. If Russia will withdraw her satellite troops beyond the 38th parallel, stop the flow of arms to them and permit unification of Korea through a United Nations-supervised election, there can be withdrawal of U. N. armies and peace.

Malik can't do that, and Asia will not believe him until he does. It may not believe the non-imperialist protestations of the U. S. either. But men like Nehru will not long be taken in by peace talk which is not supplemented by action.

Malik, by centering his fire on the United States, seeks to avoid the major fact that Russia and North Korea are making war against a government established under the protecting wing of the United Nations, and against troops under the flag of that organization.

Malik, seated in the chair of the organization which his country openly flouts, is spectacle enough. His intemperate words, and his talk of peace while his associates conduct an aggressive war, merely heighten the fantasy.

Tree decay mostly is caused by fungi, although it can be aided by certain bacteria.

SUCCEEDS GEN. DEAN—Maj. Gen. John H. Church, above, has been named as commanding general of the 24th Infantry Division succeeding Maj. Gen. William F. Dean who is missing in action in the Korean fighting. During World War II, General Church served in Europe with the 1st and 84th Infantry Divisions.

Mighty Proud To Shake Hands With Gov. Smith

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Young Ray Spalden James of Kansas City is a collector of handshakes. He's just nuts about shaking hands with important people.

He got into Gov. Forrest Smith's private office today and with all the dignity of his nine years he shook hands with the state's chief executive. Later he confided to his mother:

"I'm not going to wash my hands for a whole week."

If the temperature of an automobile motor is above normal in spite of an adequate water supply, a loose fan belt may be the cause.

Without Painful Backache

As we get older, aches and pains, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slow down kidney function. This may lead many folk to a condition of chronic backache, loss of pen and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritation due to cold, dampness or kidney infections.

If your backache is due to these causes, don't wait, try Dean's Pills, a mild diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many three Dean's give happy relief — help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and allow them to flush out waste. Get Dean's Pills today.

Bill To Hike Age Limit For Doctors

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A bill to require doctors, dentists and medical technicians up to age 45 to register with draft boards for possible induction in the armed forces was introduced in the House Wednesday.

The measure is sponsored by Rep. Saylor (R-Pa.), who as a naval officer took part in the invasion of Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

Those called up would serve for 21 months, the same length of time as other draftees, whose registration age is 18 through 25 years.

Ex-U. S. School Teacher Seeks Homes for Millions Of Europe's Refugees

By NEA Service

GARDEN CITY, N. Y.—(NEA)—The old music appreciation course has been modified. As one musician is giving it here, youngsters are even enjoying the thing.

Leon Barzin believes that good music can be good for the teaching children now to like music through "seeing" it. He is not just his own to it. Barzin's sessions are far from the usual let's sit down and listen to some nice record idea of most music appreciation courses.

To begin with, he doesn't play records at all. He brings with him an instrumental quartet, sometimes brass, sometimes woodwinds. They play a number—any number so long as it has a simple tune.

The children are urged to look at the instruments. They can go up on the platform and handle them or watch closely as the musician makes his work. They ask all kinds of questions, and they're all answered quickly—even things like "How long is the tubing in a tuba?" (The answer, incidentally, is 19 feet).

Barzin, who is director of Adelphi College's music workshop and conductor of the National Orchestral Association's training orchestra, keeps his "classes" small. At the most, there are only 80 youngsters per session. They're all local children, who attend the free weekly school on a volunteer basis.

"Most of them like it," Barzin finds. "It's up to grown-ups to keep children from being afraid of music."

Barzin has conducted his own brand of music appreciation in schools in New York, Delaware and Connecticut before his current stand. In all his times, he's found children like the idea.

"Let them take part in their own education," he says. "Don't bore them. If you do, they'll run away from you."

As part of his don't-bore-the-pupils philosophy, he doesn't bother telling them what the name of the music is. And he doesn't waste their time with the name of the composer or how long his mustache was.

He just has his quartet play. The children can dance if they want to, or yawn, or play games, or rum.

"I don't want any little boy or girl to go home and tell parents about hearing Mozart, Beethoven or some other great master," Barzin says. "I always ask them whether they like the tunes they've heard. The results are surprising. You'll find they like Prokofiev quite as often as they like Mozart."

His course only lasts about an hour. When it is over, perhaps the children haven't learned much about good music. But they haven't learned to be afraid of it, either.

The chikaran, an antelope found in India and Tibet, has four horns instead of the conventional two.

BILL FIDDLE doesn't know this youngster meeting good music with Leon Barzin. He lets the children handle all the instruments.

Pipeline Workers To Save Soil

HOUSTON, Tex.—(AP)—Soil conservation work is now being done by the big pipeline companies in cooperation with farmers. One firm, the Texas-Illinois Natural Gas Pipe Line Co., has a special department to save soil. It develops plants to hold it in place, terraces hillsides, plants grass and develops other practices.

E. D. Walton, a company executive, explains that most pipeline companies have discovered that the lines face extensive damage when the soil washes away. It is cheaper to keep the soil in place than to repair washed out lines.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round
MacArthur Bans Newspaper Criticism of 'Command Decisions And Conduct of Troops'

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON.—It is important that the American public know the rules of news censorship laid down by General MacArthur for covering the Korean war.

Theoretically, there is no censorship, since newsmen are not required to show their dispatches to Army officers. However, General MacArthur has issued a definite directive to newsmen which is highly important and which, as reported by the Columbia Broadcasting System, states that "criticism of command decisions or the conduct of Allied soldiers on the battlefield will not be tolerated."

Also significant is the fact that this new directive was issued one day after Homer Bigart of the New York Herald Tribune cabled a dispatch analyzing the conduct of U.S. troops, reporting that they were untrained, and that top officers had to remain with them when under fire to keep them from breaking. Bigart reported that this was the reason why there were such heavy casualties among officers.

The fact is that MacArthur had the largest segment of the U.S. Army under him in Japan, and failure to train troops is, of course, a direct reflection of him and his chief commander, Lieut. Gen. Walton Walker.

Army Once Welcomed Criticism

The new MacArthur directive barring newspaper criticism is in direct contradiction to the censorship rules laid down for newspapers in this country during World War II. At that time both the Army and Navy agreed that criticism was healthy, important, in fact, necessary. It is also in violation of Woodrow Wilson's famous statement in World War I: "We do not need less criticism, but more. It is hoped that criticism will be constructive, but better unfair criticism than autocratic repression."

Perhaps if there had been more newspaper scrutiny and criticism of the entire defense setup, including tanks and our easy training schedule for American troops in Japan, things might now be better in Korea.

Criticism of the U.S. military in Japan, however, has always been difficult. MacArthur just did not tolerate it. While he had no censorship rules as such, he made life difficult for the newsmen who tried to report the full story of the Japanese occupation.

For instance, here is a secret cable sent by MacArthur to Washington in 1946 in which he proposed barring certain newspapers. While few would disagree with MacArthur about barring the Daily Worker, it is hard to understand his reasons for barring such staid newspapers as the New York Herald Tribune, the San Francisco Chronicle and the Christian Science Monitor. Nevertheless his cable read:

"Cincapac, Tokyo.—While continuing my doubts as to the advisability of the contemplated trip, in view of the insistence of the War Department, I will withdraw my objection. I would like to have an opportunity to pass upon those contemplated for selection before their invitation is accomplished. I believe the list should not include actual writers but should be limited to publishers and editors and should not include those connected with papers of known hostility to the occupation. Such papers are the Christian Science Monitor, Herald Tribune, Chicago Sun, San Francisco Chronicle, PM, Daily Worker and others of this stamp whose articles and editorials have not only been slanted but have approached downright quackery and dishonesty. /signed/ MacArthur."

This policy of ousting independent newsmen continued right up to the Korean crisis. As late as June 12, London Times correspondent Frank Hawley was ordered out of Japan merely because he reported what was a well-established fact—namely, that a MacArthur-inspired ban on Japanese demonstrations was unconstitutional.

Oklahoma's Aftermaths

The people of Oklahoma have now shown what they think of speculating Senators by defeating Sen. "Cotton Elmer" Thomas in the Democratic primaries. They also came within a hair's breadth of kicking out Congressman Victor Wickersham for his salary fiddlings, and doubtless will finish the job in the November elections.

Meanwhile Senator Thomas and his broker Dyke Cullum, are convinced that their telephones are tapped.

Merry-Go-Round

Senator Ker. Wherry, Nebraska Republican, is pulling strings to have Washington Police Lieutenant Roy Blick promoted to inspector. This promotion will be Blick's reward for opening secret police files on sex unfortunates for Wherry's examination. . . . Gossip-mongers are spreading the word that Bill Boyle, chairman of the Democratic national committee, is so ill he won't be able to direct the Democratic campaign this fall. The fact is that Boyle is rapidly recovering from a slight infection and is due back at his desk within two weeks.

We Can't Afford to be Asleep In Germany as in Korea

By Bruce Blossat

Germany is the Korea of Europe, divided in control between East and West. And Europeans, watching U. S. military reverses in Korea, wonder about Germany's fate should Russia decide to strike there.

Time was when Europe took great assurance from the 150,000 American soldiers in West Germany. No one believed such a force could stand off an attacking Russian army, but it was felt America would swing in quickly with tremendous power if her troops were fired upon.

U. S. withdrawals in the Far East have altered the outlook sharply. In revealing America's unpreparedness for even a little war, they have shaken the faith of all Europeans who are depending on us in event Moscow marches.

Germany of course is the richest prize Russia could possibly grab outside of the United States. With the industrial Ruhr in the Soviet fist, she would soon be master of all Europe.

The U. S. and the West can't allow this to happen. But it's doubtful we're doing enough to prevent it.

Present U. S. mobilization plans certainly go beyond anticipated needs of the Korean war. It is clear American purpose to create a sizable armed force able to move into new trouble spots when and if the Soviet Union strikes again.

But most official thinking assumes Moscow won't do anything for a while at least that would involve her own soldiers. The belief is Soviet satellites, like the North Koreans, would be asked to do the dirty work.

Yet this kind of reasoning could be as foolish as our notion that the South Koreans, equipped only for internal police action, could beat off a well-armed North Korean force. The seasoned statesmen of Europe are looking beyond the satellites to Russia herself; we ought to be doing the same.

President Truman's proposal to seek vastly bigger funds for arming western Europe is a vital step toward real defense against the might of Russia proper. But it's only a starter.

Another move that must be considered promptly is whether to include West German forces in an overall European defense plan. Right now we're stalling on this. Soviet-controlled East Germany has a 100,000-man police force that is an army in all but name; meantime our occupation officials talk of possibly permitting a special force up to 12,000.

We can't ride along on the glib assumption Russia has no early designs on Germany, and then quickly whip a German force into shape if she does act. Soviet action there certainly would mean Russian troops as well as East German "police."

A Russian move in Germany would undoubtedly bring America's strategic air force into action, with the atom bomb its biggest threat. But we couldn't drop the bomb on the cities of western Europe, including West Germany. For there live the peoples whose help we need, whom we are trying to keep on the side of freedom.

Only great military manpower thrown against the Russians could save these lands from being swiftly overrun. There is no excuse for delaying the critical decisions as to where we shall get that manpower.

If we really want German forces included, the time to settle the point is now. If we don't, then we should get on to other arrangements. A sound defense plan for Europe, one good enough to give the Russians pause, is the greatest military challenge now facing the free countries of the West.

This Civilized Age

Ever so often we find ourselves thinking about how old we're getting. We look back—and it seems ages ago — to the days when the top of every flagpole was tenanted, marathon dancers grew bunnies and men went over Niagara Falls in barrels.

Never again, said we, will we see such silly days. We're growing up.

Well, here we are 20 years later. In just the past few weeks a man tried to go over the falls in a barrel; a soldier made 123 parachutes jumps in one day. There are a few scattered flagpole sitters and one young fellow is living in a glass-topped steel tank under water—if you can call that living.

And the newest thing in this same age comes from a 38-year-old deep sea diver. He wants to take a 14-mile walk under water—a 20-hour jaunt.

We should all be glad we're not living in those foolish days almost a quarter of a century ago. People surely did some silly things then, didn't they?

Lewis Loses Round

A cheer for the National Labor Relations Board for slapping down John L. Lewis in his vindictive effort to deprive a miner of his job.

The miner, Lloyd Sidener of Canton, Ill., was fired by his company on union demands. His offense: taking seriously a Lewis "formal order" to striking miners last winter to get back to work. Apparently the order was meant to be ignored. So Lewis put the squeeze on Sidener.

The NLRB insisted Sidener have his job back if he wants it, plus full back pay. It warned Lewis not to try such dictatorial tactics again. For the great champion of the working man, this was a taste of democracy by force-feeding.

So They Say

One of the most disgusting trends of recent years has been the movement of ill-gotten, crooked money into decent, respectable American businesses.

—Sen. Alexander Wiley, R., Wisconsin, on "nation-wide crime syndicate."

There is grave danger today of war coming to the shores of America from a foreign source than at any time since the war of 1812.

—Harold Stassen, president, University of Pennsylvania.

THE KINGDOM AND REPENTANCE

The Kingdom of God is at your door! That Kingdom stands at our doors in the person of Christ.

There are two awakenings necessary. (1) We are to be awakened to the Kingdom within us—to discover the latent powers hidden away in the recesses of our beings, to become alive to our possibilities, to become aware of our divine origin and our divine destiny. (2) We are to be awakened to the Kingdom without us—the invading Kingdom. The presence of this invading Kingdom precipitates crisis. We sense a tension between this Kingdom and what we are. For it is true that the Kingdom is written into the constitution of our beings; it is also true that we have tried to write something else there—incompatible ways, ways of sin. These incompatible ways of sin set up a conflict between themselves and the Kingdom within and the Kingdom without. Inner conflict ensues. The Kingdom without heightens that tension and brings it to crisis.

That crisis demands that we repent, that we submit, that we be changed, that we be converted, that we let this Kingdom without invade us with its healing, its reconciliation, its Life. When we fling open the doors of our being and let this Kingdom invade us, we are not letting in something strange, something alien. We are letting in the very fact for which we are made. The Kingdom within us rises up to meet the Kingdom without us and together they cast out the unnatural kingdom of sin and evil.

The coming of this invading Kingdom has the feel of a homecoming about it. There is a sense that strangeness is over, that reconciliation has taken place, that the Homeland of the soul has been found. Why? Well, when we welcome the Kingdom, we welcome that for which we are made. The Kingdom within and the Kingdom without are counterparts, are one. So we feel a deep sense of unity and universal Being.

O Christ-Kingdom, Thou art the Love of my love, the Joy of my joy, the Peace of my peace, the Being of my being. When I welcome Thee, I welcome my long-extranged self—the prodigal come home. And now I am at rest, at peace, at adjustment, at home. I thank Thee. Amen.

The Doctor Says—

Hope for Epileptics Brightens; New Aid to Diagnosis Helps

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.

Written for NEA Service

Epilepsy is the most common cause of "fits" in children, but some youngsters have convulsions which are not really epilepsy. Convulsions of this sort are likely to occur in highly nervous children and usually wear off as they grow older. It is important, however, to find out promptly what kind of convulsions are involved.

A great aid in determining the difference between epilepsy and other forms of convulsions has been made available by a special test which measures the electrical waves in the brain. This has the tongue-twisting name of electroencephalography. This test is now generally used whenever available.

On all patients who have convulsions or fits, in epilepsy these electrical waves are different from those of the normal. There are two main kinds of true epilepsy. The less serious kind is called petit mal, in which there is a brief loss of consciousness without convulsions. The severe type is called grand mal, in which there is a mental "black-out" associated with typical convulsions.

Before an attack there is usually a peculiar sensation in some part of the body. This is known as an aura. The sensation is hard to describe, but an "uneasy feeling" in the stomach area is one of the most common. Those who have epileptic attacks learn to recognize this aura and to know that an attack is on the way.

At the beginning of a major attack, the patient may give a loud scream or yell, which is called an epileptic cry. When an attack first begins the head is usually drawn back or to one side, the jaws are fixed, the hands clenched and the legs extended straight out. This is quickly followed by muscular contractions, noisy breathing, and a brick-red colored face. During all this period from the epileptic cry on, the patient is unconscious.

Attacks Can Come Early

After the attack, the patient recovers consciousness without any

HAD Ellie written me that she was looking for Jack Lanning. I could have helped her. Because it was about that time that I ran into him quite unexpectedly.

I was in Chicago sitting in a very important vice president's outer office, waiting to go over some contracts, when Jack came in. He had some papers in his hand and obviously worked there. I think we were equally astonished, but we managed to make a date for dinner after my business conference.

When we met we had a few drinks, exchanged banalities, and covertly looked each other over. He made me feel odd. His hair had gone back a little at the temples, and there were some new lines in his face, but otherwise he looked exactly the same. He was as infectious and likable as ever.

He told me about his career in the theater, ending with the debut at Long Beach. From there he had hitch-hiked East. He located his job through one of his college friends. "It was kind of a late start," he admitted. "I'm still nothing but a high-class office boy. Within the next few years, though, I think I'll be getting somewhere."

He was not married. "Why not?" I asked. "Never got around to it." He was casual enough. "What about you?"

"A girl I forgot to propose to—I don't think it would have made any difference if I had." "That's too bad." He had no idea I was talking about Ellie.

PREVITABLY, a little cautiously, I got around to the topic of Ellie. There was little I could tell him, except about her career. Finally we were silent for a while, and then he said: "I wish I'd known."

I was puzzled. "Known what?" "That she wanted a career. I wouldn't have stopped her. But I guess she was right to do it the way she did."

There was no point in telling him that a career was the thing furthest from Ellie's mind when she divorced him. He smiled and said: "It gives me a bang every time I go to the movies and see little Funny Face up there. She still makes 'em laugh, doesn't she?"

"As a matter of fact, she's much better-looking than she used to be." "Do you think so? I suppose it's the photography. What's she like now—herself I mean?" "Just about the same, from the sound of her letters. She seems to be happy."

"That's nice. She must be making a fortune, anyway." He was completely casual. He seemed at the moment to feel no more toward Ellie than he would toward any other old friend.

I was unprepared for what he said next. He looked straight at me. "Do you know why she's never married?" "No." "I realized with a shock that he was still in love with her. And I suspected that she loved him, but I could not say that. I said only: "Why don't you write her? I know she'd be glad to hear from you."

"Why do you think?" He laughed shortly and bitterly. "When I was on the Coast I could have picked up a phone and called her. I could have driven an hour and seen her. Even then I couldn't do it. She'd probably have thought I wanted to touch her for money." "Ellie would never think that." He was a little ashamed. "Of course, I know that. I'm sorry I said it."

I said: "Anyway, the situation's changed now. You're on your feet again."

He shook his head. "I told you. I'm only an office boy."

"Ellie wouldn't mind."

"I would." Abruptly he smiled, with his old optimism. "But I told you I'm getting along pretty well. Maybe, in a couple of years—well, we can talk about that later." He changed the subject abruptly and we talked about old friends from college days, and what had become of them.

Liver With Onions and Green Peppers
Hot Cooked Rice
Fresh Corn on the Cob

Watermelon
(Recipe for Stuffed dish follows)
Liver With Onions and Green Peppers — Ingredients: 4 thin slices of calves' liver (1/2 to 3/4 pound), 1/4 cup butter or margarine, 2 cups thin strips onion (large or 1/2 pound onions), 1 teaspoon sugar, 2 teaspoons soy sauce, salt, 1/2 to 1 cup thin strips green pepper (1 medium-sized).
Method: Cut liver in 1-inch squares, scraping away any thin membrane as you do so. Melt for basting.
Add onion strips and cook 5 minutes, stirring often. Sprinkle onion with sugar and soy sauce, stir and cover tightly; reduce heat to low and cook 5 minutes more. Push onion to one side of pan, but let pan so onion or margarine and pan juices cover bottom; add liver, increase to moderate heat, and cook and stir just until liver loses its pink color — this will take only a few minutes. Sprinkle liver lightly with salt and green pepper strips and mix with onions. Cover tightly, turn off heat, but allow to stand for a few minutes to warm pepper. Serve immediately over hot cooked rice. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Malaya Can Grow Coffee
SINGAPORE — (P) — Malaya would readily grow coffee if assured of a market by the United States, says J. W. Ewart, acting agricultural officer, Singapore.
He was commenting on a report that the U. S. Senate will shortly consider a bill designed to encourage coffee production in Southeast Asia to alleviate the world shortage and provide competition to Brazil. Ewart said coffee had been grown for some time in Malaya but the industry had been superseded by rubber.

SYMBOL OF LIFE is Dachau, once the infamous Nazi concentration camp. Now it houses hundreds of Europe's homeless.

By NEA Foreign Service

PARIS—(NEA)—Mrs. Evelyn Scheyer, a former school teacher from New York, is house-hunting in Western Europe—on a whole-sale basis.

As resettlement specialist in the labor division of the Economic Cooperation Administration in Paris, her job is to find homes for some of Europe's millions of displaced persons.

The homeless of Europe pass by her desk. But to Mrs. Scheyer, they are not just "refugees." She thinks of them as "men and women looking for a job and a home in a place which is unfamiliar to them."

And each one has a different personal problem. There is even a big problem over the word "refugee," and what makes up that category.

Does it include the White Russians who have lived in Paris for 30 years? What about the Kalmyks. On the march for 600 years from Central Asia through Russia, they find themselves to-day displaced persons from Yugoslavia in Germany.

What makes her current job so difficult, Mrs. Scheyer says, is that the refugees are dumped at the nearest ports of entry, in areas least equipped to handle them.

Refugees now make up 50 per cent of the population in the battered little state of Schleswig-Holstein in Northwest Germany. Bavaria, with the second largest group, has had a hard time getting other west German states to accept refugees pouring in across her eastern border.

In trips through Germany and Austria, Mrs. Scheyer has seen for herself the acute housing conditions. Refugees are living in converted freight cars, in old Army barracks and in the former concentration camp at Dachau. Two families frequently share one small shack.

The largest project undertaken thus far, especially for refugees, is to provide 10,000 new dwellings in Schleswig-Holstein. ECA has approved the use of 40,000,000 Deutsche marks in Marshall Plan counterpart funds (the equivalent of about $10,000,000) for the project. The government of Schleswig-Holstein, together with building cooperatives will match it.

To encourage private investment, ECA releases the local currency counterpart funds only for projects getting some funds from other sources, Mrs. Scheyer points out.

To help make the refugees part of the German life and economy, she explains, the new homes will be widely distributed within the

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hare and son of Springfield were guests worse than they lived in their former homes.

In Austria, Mrs. Scheyer says, most of the workers among the 350,000 refugees outside the German community and around work places, especially factories which would use additional help if there were housing for workers.

Still, out of a total of 2,000,000 unemployed in Western Germany, 700,000 are refugees. As a group employment amounts to 10 per cent of the working force and they are living not so well as their German cousins and generally far there are signs it may grow worse.

ing water, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup Roquefort or Blue Cheese dressing, romaine.

Method: Cut ends of beans and scrub with vegetable brush in cold water. Slice diagonally in 1-inch pieces. Put in 6 to 8-cup saucepan with water and salt and cook rapidly, covered, just until beans are tender—about 8 to 10 minutes. Drain and chill. Just before serving mix with Roquefort or Blue cheese dressing and serve on romaine. Makes 4 servings.

Note: Roquefort cheese dressing may be bottled. To make at home

Says Square Lips Aid to Singers

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—Want to learn to sing? Then be a "square lipper," says William Ernest Ross, associate professor of voice at Indiana University. Form your lips into a square, throw back your shoulders and burst into song. And don't be afraid to show your upper and lower front teeth, either, he says.

Other pointers thrown out by the professor are: Don't smile when you sing. You're more likely to yell than sing if you do. Don't sing with "lazy lips." If your lips are relaxed, they will tend to muffle your voice.

crumble Roquefort or Blue cheese into French dressing, using about a tablespoon — or more if desired — to 1/4 cup of dressing.

"Realistic" Art in Hungary
VIENNA — (P) — Realism is not realism if it portrays things as they really are. In that case it's naturalism, which only reflects bourgeois decadence. That's the latest art lesson being taught in Hungary, according to reports reaching Vienna.

Hungarian artists have been told to adopt "heroic realism" as practiced in the Soviet Union. "Heroic realism" shows things as they ought to be. For those artists who are in need of ideas, the Communist Party has issued the following "suggested" themes:

Border patrols arresting an imperialist spy. The state prosecutor demanding a heavy sentence for a traitor to the Hungarian People's Democracy. The minister of interior listening to

Pilots as The Chief Lovers Of Airfields

By Hal Boyle

A FORWARD BASE IN KOREA —(P)—The only people I know who love airfields are pilots.

To an outsider, most airfields look alike. But they hold personalities of their own to the men who wheel planes through the skies. Just what the difference between them is, I have never been able to find out.

An airport, to me, is just a control tower, a windsock in the breeze and broad strips of safety on which I can land and again feel mother nature welcome me through my feet.

But airfields are homes to the fliers. They like to adventure through the cloud-filled pastures of space. Once they land, however, they want to stay right on the base and shoot gossip with the other boys. It's hard to get them to drive out and see what the towns are like that the air-bases are built to serve. To them, the airport itself is a complete city.

And certainly this most advanced airstrip is a wonderful and complicated community. I've seen fighter planes to deal death to the enemy and it receives our own battle-wounded and flies them out in comfort to a general hospital in Japan.

It is all done so casually and competently that a stranger could wander across the field and never know what was going on.

This airstrip lies in a valley surrounded by hills that would be called mountains in the Ozarks of Missouri and Arkansas—but just humps in Colorado.

It is much like Taft, the famous World War II crossroads airfield under an in Africa. When the sun shines it is hell, swept by dust. When it rains you can take a dozen steps and the mud on your feet will weigh more than your shoes.

It is a pioneer village, built out of the need for immediate close support of the ground troops. The ground crews and fliers live in tents adjoining the field. An air control plane and the F-51 fighter plane it directs to enemy targets can fly to the enemy front lines in 20 minutes or so.

Somewhere, transport pilots from bases in Japan fly in a welcome case of beer for their buddies in combat.

But there is no pampering of anybody. Often a flier who has made three missions to the front in a day comes home weary at night to find the mess hall closed. They don't open it up again for him. He eats out of a can and hits the sack—worn out.

It is strange but true that the fliers of the modern war are often older on the average than infantrymen. In the second world war it was more the other way around.

You see many Doughboys, for example, between 18 and 20 years of age. But three men in the transport plane crew that flew me here a week ago are all married, and among them have ten children.

They are the pilot, Capt. L. N. Moke, of Topeka, Kas., co-pilot, Capt. Doran Kelly, Vallejo, Calif., and the crew chief, Master Sgt. Arthur L. Erickson, of Denver, Colo.

Capt. Moke has three girls and a boy. Capt. Kelly and Sgt. Erickson have three children each.

Capt. Kelly recently served as pilot for Jimmy Doolittle on his tour of the war zone. But the biggest thrill the crew had came when their unarmed plane was fired on by an enemy tank in the early days of the campaign.

"We ducked into a cloud bank over a mountain and got away," said Kelly. "But ever since then Sgt. Erickson keeps a sharp lookout every time we approach the Korean coast."

"That's right," said Erickson cheerfully. "And I'm going to keep right on looking. I have something to come home to."

Soloist at Fair

Marys Ann Waters, who will again be the soloist with the Harry Kaufmann band, which will play for the Sedalia State Fair the week of August 20th.

This band, of which Alvin Stephens is the director, plays for many important functions throughout Missouri and Kansas and played for the Kansas City Centennial celebration this year. Alvin Stephens, the director, is recognized as one of the best band leaders in the middle west.

In addition to playing for activities at the grandstand, such as the harness races, the stunt show, etc., the band will also play for the horse show. Standard band music, patriotic and up-to-the-minute popular music will be featured.

Miss Marys Ann Waters has a long list of accomplishments in the way of personal appearances for such a young girl. She is in big demand in the middle west, appearing with horse shows, including the American Royal in Kansas City, with music shows, at banquets, as soloist with the Kansas City Philharmonic orchestra and the Kansas City Civic orchestra, as star on the Index show on radio station WDAF and she has made frequent appearances on television. Following her appearance at the Missouri State Fair she will go to New York to make an appearance on television.

One of Miss Waters' specialties is that she can sing most any song upon request, whether it be popular, western or musical comedy.

King in Round With Fate Comes Out On Losing Side

As one has watched this drama unfold it has been given to wonder whether the king of the Belgians had forgotten that the day is past when kings rule by "divine right."

The late Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany was one of the last of the great monarchs to insist on this status. It was this characteristic of the "All Highest" which presumably inspired the poem "Meinself — und Gott" by Alexander MacGregor Ross. This was first published by the Montreal (Canada) Herald in 1897 and infuriated the German emperor. However, it was this self-same characteristic which was largely responsible for the loss of his throne and the abolishment of the monarchy.

I hasten to add that no invidious comparison between Leopold and the Kaiser is intended. The point is that under constitutional monarchies, like the Belgian, the king rules by will of the people. He is a part of the structure of government; placed there by popular wish. There is no question of divine right.

Glimpse at Monarchies

So Leopold has been right in withdrawing from the picture. The pity is that he didn't see the light sooner.

In considering this Belgian situation it is interesting to take a quick glimpse at what has been happening to monarchies during the last half century. In that comparatively brief period the following monarchies, among others, have been abolished.

The Russian empire: Germany, Spain, Turkey, Albania, Austria, Bavaria, Bulgaria, China, Hungary, Italy, Montenegro, Manchukuo, Portugal, Rumania, Serbia and several smaller states.

The Belgian crisis of course has been far more than a national affair. It has been a matter of concern to all the western powers which are standing against communism. Belgium is an important part of the Atlantic pact which has been created for the defense of western Europe. Apropos of this the London Times observes:

"The statement announcing the king's decision places it firmly upon right, simple and sufficient grounds. It was clear that the king could not be king of all the Belgians. He has therefore acted with the over-riding concern of assuring Belgian unity at a time when, he says, the international situation more than ever needs that unity to be reinforced."

"The nations that stand beside Belgium in the larger crisis to which he alludes will be grateful to King Leopold for thus recognizing the peculiar danger of the civil faction at this time. He has perhaps done no more than his patriotic duty, but also he has done no less."

That seems to sum up the position succinctly. His majesty has failed to achieve his personal ambition, but his final decision to withdraw should work out to the good of his country.

Mrs. Edward Newton, attractive mother from Cincinnati, Ohio, wants readers of this paper to know about Bobby Newton, her little nephew Bobby was pale, run-down, had no appetite. After he had given Bobby HADACOL, he had a grand appetite, color in his cheeks and is healthier all the way. HADACOL is great for thin, puny kids who are nervous, have easily upset stomachs and poor appetites because their little systems lack precious vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Nicotin—elements so vital for growth and to maintain good health. HADACOL even helps build up the hemoglobin content of red blood (where iron is needed) to course through their bodies, bringing unbelievable new strength and energy. As Being 'An Aggressor'

Soviet Union has been a deliberate aggressor."

He added that he would "document this with facts as I go along."

Last week, Paulcy called on President Truman. He told White House reporters then that he was in Washington to discuss industrial locations in North Korea with defense department officials. The presumption was that the information was for purposes of strategic bombing.

Paulcy also said he had advised Mr. Truman in 1948 that the Russians might seek to force communism on all of Korea.

For the senators, Paulcy produced letters and recommendations he had made to President Truman in 1946 indicating his belief that the communists were seizing complete control of North Korea and would set up a puppet government there.

Korea, Paulcy said, "is a land in which the north and south are tied together as a prize. Under these circumstances the country was meant to be a whole and it was for that reason we so argued in the United Nations. The Soviets know it was meant to be a whole, also — and that is why you have war in Korea today."

Paulcy said that the Russians, after much pressure, agreed that a United Nations trusteeship should be set up for Korea. But Paulcy said the Russians carefully set up a strong communist control in North Korea from the start with the idea of taking over all of the land.

Paulcy added:

"Korea may be only the first battleground. Korea itself is but a symptom, bloody and costly as it may be, of a malignancy that could sweep the world, destroying democracy as the hopes of free people everywhere unless it is checked and checked now."

Custody of Son to Woman With Polio

DES MOINES, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A 26-year-old woman who is in an iron lung in a Des Moines hospital with polio has been awarded temporary custody of her 30-month-old son.

District Judge Tom K. Murrow awarded legal custody yesterday to Mrs. Pauline McEwen pending a hearing of the divorce action she has filed against her husband, David, 27.

The judge ordered that Mrs. McEwen's mother take care of the boy.

Mrs. McEwen was stricken with polio in September of 1948, nine months after her son was born. The couple was married here in 1945.

She charged that her husband took the child by force July 9 from her sister, Mrs. James Murphy, of Rock Island, Ill., who has been taking care of the child.

The sister testified that Mrs. McEwen's one great source of comfort during her illness and marital strife had been the possession of her son.

Absentee Vote Count Friday

exactly how many of these were requested by Democrats, but perhaps as many as 8,000 voted in the Allison-Hennings race.

About 2,300 of the mail ballots were issued to voters from St. Louis and St. Louis county, where Hennings was given a big 71,000 vote margin in regular voting.

Absentee ballots went to 379 voters in Jackson county and Kansas City, where Allison had a 28,000-vote lead.

A large percentage of the mail vote undoubtedly came from the nation's capital, where the Missouri State Society estimates 10,000 persons from the state are living.

Lines Shortened For a Showdown Fight as Tanks Are Made Ready

Should Be Able To Hold

The Allied forces should be able to hold their new line on the west, the dispatches said. The North Koreans no longer would be able to circle the defenders' tanks so freely and might even be in danger of having some of their own forces cut off by counterattacks.

The enemy divisions in the south were particularly vulnerable because of long supply lines. To get to Pusan, enemy tanks would have to spool over two roads flanked by many spots of the way and pass a bottleneck at Masan or a broad bay 50 miles west of Pusan.

The only other actual fighting reported anywhere on the front was at Yongdok at the opposite end of the line on the east coast, 90 miles north of Pusan.

The Third South Korean division was still attacking there, after driving the Reds three miles north of that town battered to bits by navy guns.

However, a communiqué from Eighth Army headquarters in Korea said considerable North Korean troop movements were observed in the central sector where the U. S. First Cavalry division withdrew from fire-fueled Kumsong yesterday. The Communists were attempting to follow up the American retreat closely. It was in that sector that the pull-back of American Allied lines was the greatest. The Nakdong is about 18 miles southeast of Kumsong.

Mustangs Kept Active

TOKYO, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Australian fighter planes spent two hours yesterday over the Korean Red troops' tank tanks.

It was the longest time the Mustangs have spent in the air on any one day since they entered the war.

They teamed at a South Korean base between flights. The Australians were active in the Chinha area, blasting enemy concentrations and equipment.

Little enemy activity was noted in reconnaissance flights over the target area.

All aircraft returned to their base undamaged.

Round House (For People): A. G. Ford thinks it will be "the most interesting place to live."

By NEA Service
AURORA, Ill. — There's a sign outside the new home Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Ford are building here. It reads: "We don't like your house either."

That retort is designed to ward off wise-cracks, "because the Fords' new house invites them. The structure looks like a big apple buried in the ground, with two tangerines alongside. The apple is the circular central portion, and the tangerines are two circular wings.

That alone would serve to make the house unusual. But over and above the unique design are the still-more-unique building materials. The house is being made out of coal—canal coal, actually. Plus a few other things, like blue-green glass and steel ribs painted vermilion.

The Fords' house is, of course, believed to be the last word in modern-style housing. Mrs. Ford, who is an artist and president of the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, long wanted a modern and house. So she asked Bruce Goff, head of the architectural department of the University of Oklahoma, to turn himself loose at the drawing board. He did.

When Ford, a gas engineer, saw the plans, he looked them over for about two hours without saying a word. Then, finally, he turned to Goff and his wife and said, "This probably will be the most interesting place in the world to live. Let's build it!" Inside the large central portion of the house will be one big circular room, on two levels. The lower level will be the kitchen and dining area, complete with a built-in circular lounge in front of a fireplace. The upper level will be Mrs. Ford's study, directly under a big skylight. This part will also be a combination living room and art gallery.

Each of the two circular wings will contain a bedroom and bath. And there will be an adjoining carport.

Canal coal was chosen as the building material because it is cheap, yet durable. To give a little variety to the exterior, chunks of the blue-green glass were set in the canal coal every once in a while. White mortar was used to hold the coal together.

The vermilion-hued steel ribs, which support the domes, will be covered with copper screen on one side of the house. On the other, a huge picture window of plate glass will give an unlimited view.

The inside, as Mrs. Ford plans to decorate it, promises to be as different as the outside. Her color scheme will be black, turquoise and vermilion. Even the piano house. So she asked Bruce Goff, head of the architectural department of the University of Oklahoma, to turn himself loose at the drawing board. He did.

When Ford, a gas engineer, saw the plans, he looked them over for about two hours without saying a word. Sedalia "WhizKids" Eliminate Patton Creameries 5 to 1 In Semi-Finals of Pro Tourney

'Whiz Kids' and Cubs Will Meet Monday; Finals Will Be On Saturday, August 12

Confidence, the desire to win, paid off dividends to the Sedalia "Whiz Kids" Merchant, Monday night and they defeated the strong Patton Creameries of Springfield 5 to 1 in the first semi-final game of the Missouri State Semi-Pro tournament under lights of Liberty Park. They now meet the Sedalia Cubs, Monday night, August 7 in the last semi-final game.

The "Whiz Kids" row gave a tournament record of 5 victories against one loss, their opponents Monday night. The Cubs have won 4 and lost 1. The loss Wednesday night by the Creameries resulted in their elimination having lost two games and won four.

The Kids were the visiting team in the game against Patton's. The opening inning started off as if the Springfield Creamery aggression might start a wild war. Enos hitting the second pitch only to be thrown out. McCandless then singled and went to second on Holst's error. Menn fanned and Webb threw Patchin out at first. From then on the Kids began to tighten down and errors they made were not costly.

Walker Triples

In the fourth inning after Bodenhamer struckout, Walker tripled to deep center. Dillard was up and on an error by Menn Walker scored. Dillard then went out, third to first. Waters walked and Lumpe was out at Buehler to Gibbard. The fifth inning the heat was turned on after Webb fanned. Holst walked. Brown singled sending Holst to third. Holst stole home. Imhauser walked, but Brown went to second on Holst's steal. Bodenhamer singled scoring Brown. Walker fanned. Dillard singled and Imhauser scored. Waters was out second to first. Three runs were scored in the inning.

Creameries' Run
Springfield scored their lone run in the fifth. Hamlin fanned. Gibbard hit out a double. Jinks fanned. Richman singled and Gibbard scored. Enos struckout to end the inning.

Lumpe in the sixth singled and went to second on Webb's fielder's choice. Holst struckout. Brown singled and Lumpe scored. Brown was caught at second on a throw by Menn.

From then on the game was scoreless, both pitchers working hard. Buehler was removed in the fifth inning after two were out and two were on base.

Following the game, the opposing Springfield players had nothing out praise for the "Whiz Kids". Said one of the players "if they play next Monday like they played against us tonight the Cubs are a sure cinch for them."

The Cubs have a different thought about that Monday night game. They were on hand watching the game and "more-or-less" scouted the playing of the players and watching Imhauser pitch. Manager Jack Alpert hasn't said anything, but he has been thinking considerable about what he was going to do in their semi-final game.

The finals will be played Saturday night August 12 between the winners of Monday night's game and the Holcomb Cardinals the 1949 defending champions of the Missouri State Semi-Pro tournament.
